

Mark Hayes

is one of Canada's most experienced and respected copyright, privacy and technology lawyers. His practice includes a unique combination of litigation and commercial matters relating to privacy and access to information, copyright, entertainment and media and information technology. He has extensive experience with the Canadian Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act and the federal Privacy Commissioner and has advised on and litigated privacy and access to information issues for a variety of public and private sector clients. He has written and lectured extensively in Canada and abroad on issues relating to privacy, copyright, entertainment law, technology and the Internet, was a co-author of The Cyberspace is Not a "No Law Land," the landmark 1997 study commissioned by Industry Canada on copyright liability on the Internet, and is currently writing the Canadian chapter of the prestigious U.S. publication Proskauer on Privacy. He has developed and taught a number of law school courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, including the innovative "E-Regulation" course for the Osgoode Hall LL.M. in E-Business. He has been the Chair of the Privacy Section of the Ontario Bar Association since 2005 and a member of the Executive of that section since 2001. He is ranked in The Canadian Legal Lexpert Directory in both the "Technology" and "Computers and I.T." categories, has been included in the Lexpert/American Lawyer Leading 500 Lawyers in Canada and is certified by the Law Society as a Specialist in both Civil Litigation and Intellectual Property (Copyright).
